

St. Ignatius, Our Lady of the Assumption, St. John the Evangelist, Presentation

Growing In Faith Together

Psychology and Religion

The Jungian Model: Its strengths and weaknesses

By Richard William Norman

Chairman of the Theology Department at St. Francis High School

Wednesday, February 13, 20, & 27 and March 5, 2008

7:00—9:00 PM

Our Lady of the Assumption—St. John's Hall

Cost: $25.00 for the series

“Voctaus Atque Non Voctaus Deus Aderit” (“Bidden on not bidden, God is present”). These Latin words were carved over the front door of Carl Jung's house in Zurich. It was to remind all who entered that “Awe of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.” (Psalm 111.10) Carl Gustav Jung's psychological theories have found a welcome abode in academic, spiritual and professional circles. However, there is a critical reception in some disciplines as his ideas have permeated studies in religion, philosophy and literature.

This workshop will uncover the true strengths and promise in Jung's analytical psychology and the “Jungian cause.” In addition, we will observe the limitations and peril in the Jungian model.

This course qualifies for teacher certification Renewal credits for the category, Spirituality.

Questions? Call 488-4626